Plenty of Water for Mining—

A. C. Epperley, of the Columbia mine, is in the city from the big property. He reports that there is an excellent head of water this year, and that the placers will have a long run.

Hears of Father's Death—

P. T. Birchard received the sad news today of the death of his father, death having occurred at Marshalltown, Iowa, Thursday evening. The deceased was 82 years of age, and will be remembered by many in this city, he having visited his son here during the summer of 1912.

Tourist Season Is On—

Joseph Wilson and family and Harley Bailey, six in all, with two automobiles, were the first of this season's auto tourists to reach this city from the south, this party having left Santa Ana on March 8, although their actual traveling time amounted to about a week. They traversed roads in all conditions, but they report that they had no serious trouble. They are en route to Tillamook county.

Union Revival—

A most profitable service last night and an excellent audience. Rev. S. A. Douglas preached the sermon. Miss Patillo sang a solo. A double quartette of young people, trained by Mrs. Pinkerton, sang a selection. They were as follows: Louise Pinkerton, Florence Riddle, Florence Smith, Vivian Isham, Loren Basler, Earl Voorhies, Garnet Best. Service to night at 7:30.

CASH PRIZES FOR BOY BEET GROWERS

The Rogue River Public Service corporation has offered to furnish water for irrigation free of charge to any boy under eighteen years of age who will cultivate sugar beets for delivery to the Oregon-Utah Sugar company for the growing season of 1916 on any plot of ground located within the city limits of Grants Pass under the ditches of the company, not exceeding the size of five ordinary lots. The land so cultivated must not be land which is already signed up with the Oregon-Utah Sugar company, and it must be distinctly understood that the land must be cultivated by the boys themselves, as the offer is made with the desire of encouraging young boys to engage in an industry which will be profitable alike to them and the sugar company.

For the best beets raised a prize of $50 to any boy under eighteen years of age will be offered at the grange fair that is held in the fall in this city. Mr. Sanders states that at the Utah state fair he was much impressed by the exhibits of sugar beets grown by boys of the grammar schools, high schools and agricultural colleges, and these boys had the finest beets that were shown anywhere. He said that there are a great many boys in Utah and Idaho who pay their way through school by raising beets, and there are others who annually raise beets so as to provide themselves with Christmas money.

NO CONFIRMATION OF KILLING AMERICANS

El Paso, Mar. 31—Reports of skirmishing between Villistas and Carranzistas have been widely exaggerated, Consul Garcia declared today. His assertion was based on despatches from General Cabazas, in command of the Guerrero garrison of 50, to General Gavira at Juarez.

These advices told of a skirmish in which Francisco Villa was shot in the leg. They did not confirm the rumored massacre at Guerrero, mentioned no losses on either side, and declared Villa departed with his band following the clash.

Messages received by Gavira indicated the fight occurred Wednesday night or Thursday morning. They disagreed in some respects with General Pershing's despatches to San Antonio. The advices said there were no new developments with regard to American use of railroads, that constitutionalists in the field knew nothing of the intentions of the United States troops and that the communication from Carranza about the railroads covered the Mexican view.

A Little Overworked

GERMANS LOSE MANY AT VERDUN

London, Mar. 31—Twenty thousand Germans have been killed or maimed as the result of the Crown prince's renewal of his attack against Verdun, according to the estimates of French military experts today.

The new assault was launched on both banks of the Meuse. Massed batteries on Hill 304 wiped out whole battalions when the Germans rushed at Malancourt. French officers watching the spectacular charge through field glasses saw great, bloody gaps torn in the charging ranks.

A few survivors, few of them uninjured gained a foothold in the village. But there the dash halted. The German officers remaining evidently saw they had not enough men left to continue the drive, and more died every minute even as they crouched behind the shelter of ruined walls and heaps of debris.

The ratio of German losses in the new attacks on Douaumont yesterday was the heaviest yet recorded, Paris claimed. For two days before the attempted advance, German guns were shelling eastern Malancourt and the French defenses fronting south. French cannon on Bois Bourrus hill and Hill 304 replied shell for shell.

The crown prince is expected to hurl fresh troops at Malancourt and the Avoncourt woods simultaneously within the next two days. Yesterday thrusts at Douaumont were believed merely a diversion, intending to keep the French busy, while the Germans prepared to renew their attacks northwest of Verdun.
